

Dr. Samuel Cordey

Samuel Cordey, Ph.D., is a board-certified specialist in clinical microbiology. He joined the Laboratory of Virology of the Geneva University Hospitals (2007), where he divides his time between translational research and routine diagnostics, including emerging viruses. His present research interests are related to the investigation of diseases of unrecognized viral etiology by using molecular and high-throughput sequencing, their associated epidemiology (among others, human astroviruses), and the development of diagnostic methods.