

CENTRE FOR EMERGING VIRAL DISEASES

Geneva University Hospitals
Faculty of Medicine, University of Geneva

Pr Parham Sendi,

Division of Communicable Diseases, Federal Office of Public Health, Department of Internal Affairs, Switzerland

Parham Sendi, MD, FIDSA, FRCP is a Professor of Infectious Diseases at the University of Bern, and Head of the Division of Communicable Diseases at the Federal Office of Public Health in Switzerland. He did his training in Switzerland and a research fellowship at the Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden. He worked as a locum consultant and honorary Ph.D. supervisor at the Oxford University Hospitals, UK.

Dr. Sendi is a member of the scientific committee consulting on microbiology perspectives in the view of public health questions for the Robert Koch Institute, Berlin Germany.

His research interest evolves around the topics of osteoarticular, intravascular, central nervous system, and streptococcal infections, and PK/PD of antibiotics.

He is a leading author of several Swiss guidelines in the field of ortho-ID and prevention of infective endocarditis. In addition, he serves as Journal Editor of Microbiology and Infection and Open Forum Infectious Diseases”

